

Café de Paris

Designer: John Kerr Associates Location: London, UK

London's most famous dance hall and restaurant since 1924, the Café de Paris, was once the watering hole for regulars like Marlene Dietrich, the Agha Khan and the Prince of Wales. Today the club continues to rake in celebrities and musicians from all over the world, hosting a variety of nights that often feature artists and live performers. The latest addition to the club includes these contemporary VIP rooms, designed as intimate chill-out spaces done up with smooth, creamy textures in deep, rich tones to offer the guests a relaxed, sensual and luxurious vibe.

Previous page: The Red Room is true to its name; curved red leather banquette seating and a red velvet couch match the Red Venetian plastered walls and the dark red carpet along the floors.
Right: The Blue Room features a Blue Venetian plastered wall with a semi polished stucco finish, accompanied by a curvy leather couch in burnt orange.
